

We continue our cycle of monthly messages for 2021 with the message for November 1, 2005 for our prayer groups and personal reflection.

November 1, 2005

My apostles will be known by their love. It has always been this way. Look for those who treat others gently and you will see my hand at work. If you begin to follow me, you will be gentle and loving to other people. Dear apostles, during this time I send you great graces. Everything you need comes from me. Do not hesitate to answer my call because you feel you are not holy enough. You are called to holiness, it is true, but all genuine holiness comes from me. If you ask me, I will send it to you in great abundance. I notice that many people fear a commitment to me because they see only their own flaws and weaknesses. At this time I want you to stop thinking about yourself in those terms. It is your humanity that delights me, my friend. It is your humanity that gives me glory. Souls in Heaven give me praise, it is true. I return their love. But when a person on Earth, acting from faith, makes even the smallest gesture of love or fidelity to me, I am given great glory and the family of God is given power. Yes, each time a person on Earth steps out for God in any way, the Kingdom grows. Do not put a limit on the importance of each little act and each little prayer. If you rose each day and pledged your allegiance to Heaven with an honest desire to serve, and then went out and committed sins all of that day, you would still be considered a friend to the Savior. Now I know that you will not do this because when you pledge your allegiance to me, you are then wrapped in great graces. These graces assist you in each moment and illuminate my will for you so that you can more easily make heavenly decisions. But I am making a point so that you will understand that if you try to please me in even the smallest way, the world will change. Each prayer, however small and imperfect, fuels this renewal. Will you answer my call? I am relying on my apostles to spread my words and to allow my light and love to flow back into this world. It is only a difficult job if you rely on yourself. If you rely on me, you will see the greatest things happen in the shortest time. You will be filled with my love for others. Ask me for this. When you do not feel my love, remind me of this promise and I will send you great love for others. This prayer always reflects my will. It is always answered. If you see people through my eyes, you will love them. Be at peace in each moment because you are surrounded by Heaven. There is nothing to fear. Let love direct your actions and you will be a part of my team.
